

Pharmacy Watch Group

I want to share my experience with Drugbuyers.com, a site dedicated to chronic pain patients. I suffer from chronic pain and it's very difficult and expensive for me to get good pain management in the US. Many doctors are reluctant to treat chronic pain, especially outside a hospital setting. This site made it possible for me to find reliable suppliers for hydrocodone without which I would still be out of work. I don't think I would ever have felt comfortable ordering online if not for Drugbuyers. I knew where to go and what to expect by using this site. The information there is very up to date, they have great people working hard to offer a List of reliable pharmacies. I was also able to find information on the different strengths and qualities of the medication I take. I have met a handful of great people, and talked to a lot of nice people. Knowing I'm not alone with my chronic pain is one of the best things that happened to me. Over the years I've learned a lot of information and in turn have been able to pass that on to others who do not know. Mods are educated and actually take the time to read the posts. Have been a member for over three years. The most important: it's FREE. I love it. Saved my life
