

Get Rid Of Cold Sores With Abreva Cold Sore Medication

If you are among the millions of people who try to get rid of cold sores each and every year, then you have most likely tried several of the over-the-counter remedies that are available. One of these products is the Abreva Cold Sore Medication. Let's take a closer look at Abreva and find out if it actually works as advertised. The Abreva cold sore medicine is sold in any pharmacy aisle of your local drugstore. It comes in a bright blue package that contains a small 2 gram tube. You will find it at a cost of $10-$15. In reading the directions, it says to use the product 5 times every day by applying the cream on the cold sore when the area first begins to tingle. When you get home with the package the first thing you will find is how tough it is to get the tube out of the packaging. It nearly takes a small army to do it! Whoever designed the packaging should get a raise for making it nearly impossible to get to. When you do get it open you might be asking yourself how could something so small cost $15? The product seems so tiny, but then again, if it works then I don't really care what size it is. Well, after using the product as directed I must say that I have mixed results. Does it get rid of cold sores? For some people I am sure it does, but for me it didn't really work out too well. I didn't find that it stopped or shortened the healing time of my cold sore in a dramatic way. To be fair though, I have known others who have used Abreva and had good success, so the product does apparently help some people. With that said, you may want to give Abreva a try. But, what I have found is that there are other methods of treating a cold sore that work much better in relieving the symptoms and helping prevent their future return. All Rights Reserved Worldwide.
