

Prolific NC Running Back Has Maryland No 1

It sent Maryland right to the top of his list, Hillside assistant coach Antonio King said of Douglas, who received a written Terps offer in the mail last Wednesday. He met with coach Ray [Rychleski] in May, and Coach Ray felt real strongly about making an offer after he got a chance to meet with the other coach and review Douglas highlight tape.

Douglas is a 6-foot-1, 175-pounder who runs a 40-yard dash in the mid-4.4s and has all the intangibles of a top-notch running back.

What makes him a guy who all these schools are offering, is he has great vision and balance, King said. He has outstanding vision and breakaway speed and is an all-around good player.

Despite playing on the same team as a quarterback who threw for more than 2,900 yards and UNC commit Greg little, who barely missed a 1,000 yard season both rushing and receiving, Douglass has earned himself a nice list of offers: Maryland, North Carolina State, Cal, Marshall, Northwestern, Duke, ECU and Tulsa. North Carolina is interested as well.

Douglass, who will visit Maryland June 29, told Terp Sports Report hes not concerned about how far away from home he goes for college. Hes quite excited about the prospects of Maryland.

Ive seen them a lot on TV and I know they have some great coaches, he said. Rychleski told him Theyre taking two backs and Id be good as one of them.

Douglass has solid grades and is a hard worker. Hes spending the summer working twice a day with a personal trainer, while sandwiching individual work in between. He does not plan on committing soon, but would like to get it done before football season, and a quality visit to College Park could go a long way toward solidifying the Terps in the top position for his commitment.
