

Medical Tools

Few tools online are more popular -- and more frustrating -- than those that offer information about health and medicine. A full 71% of online users turn to their computers to research health issues, according to 2006 research from JupiterKagan Inc.'s JupiterResearch. Among online users age 55 and older, 27% said they relied more on the Internet for health information than they did a year earlier. But a quarter of consumers who look for health information online say they are overwhelmed by the information they find, according to a survey last August from the Pew Internet and American Life Project ...
