

Highway 63 collision fatal for friends going to school

Two Boone County women died yesterday after the car they were in hydroplaned off northbound Highway 63 and collided with a tractor-trailer.

Whitney M. Bentlage, 18, of Ashland and Elizabeth A. Shea, 20, of Columbia were ejected from the 2000 Pontiac Grand Am after the collision. Both women were pronounced dead at the scene.

At about 8:20 a.m., the Missouri State Highway Patrol said, Bentlage was driving north on Highway 63 near Sturgeon when she lost control on the wet pavement near McHatton Road. The Pontiac then traveled off the left side of the highway, crossed a grassy median and collided with a southbound Volvo semi.

The driver of the semi was identified as Thomas W. Goddard, 39, of Chariton, Iowa. Goddard told emergency crews that he was not injured, but he was taken by ambulance to Boone Hospital Center for observation.

They said: Having regard to the Internet s importance to the world economy, to maintain control of the domain name system will be crucial. The letter from the two Republican members, two members of the Democratic Party have completed. The EU and other countries are demanding the United States will Management System for Internet domain names to the United Nations control of the management. The Bush government is very inconsistent. Next month, the two sides will of the United Nations meeting in Tunis to continue discussing the matter.
