Sahul: Harpal Herbal Contemporary technology meets ancient ayurveda

Global attention is focused on traditional remedies for the treatment of refractory diseases and importance of traditional system of medicine has now been recognized all over the World. The traditional medical practices have become the integral part of Socio-economic culture, particularly in the countries of the third World. World Health Organization (WHO) has accepted the importance of the traditional medicine in catering to the needs of Primary Health Care in different parts of the World. This is the proper time for India to make relentless efforts to explore its immense traditional knowledge resources by establishing the authenticity of the Indigenous Drugs based on the Experimental Clinical Trials. India is a very rich centre of Phyto-diversity with a long history of plant-based medicines. The oldest scriptures like Rigveda mentions use of herbal medicines which have proved reliable and effective in treating and preventing diseases.

Of all the traditional knowledge bases, Ayurveda is regarded as the Supreme because of its systematic approach to most of the important disciplines related to field of medicine and allied sciences. The homeopathic opium which cures constipation and the allopathic opium which causes it, both fall within the Ayurvedic therapeutic measures. Ayurveda, which literally means 'The Science of Life', is the healing gift to us from the ancient enlightened Vedic culture dated back to 1500 B.C. Ayurveda has gone through several stages of development in its long history. It spreads with Vedic and Hindu culture as far as far- east like Indonesia, and to the west it influenced the ancient Greeks, who have also developed a similar form of medicine. In this way, Ayurveda became the basis of the healing traditions of Tibet, Sri Lanka, and Burma and influenced Chinese medicine also. Today Ayurveda, in yet another stage of development, is understanding re-adaptation to the western World and modern conditions. However, after suffering from the decadence and stagnation for centuries, it is now being revived and revitalized to suit the present health, beauty and personal care needs of human without losing its fundamentals.

Ayurvedic therapy involves the utilization of natural agents for good general health, prevention of disease, rejuvenation of body functions, enhancement of the immunity and healthy aging. This eternal science deals with the creation and the biology of life with its core objectives of 'preserving health' and 'preventing diseases'. Sahul India Limited presents each aspect of this marvelous healing science in a most authentic and precise manner. Sahul India Limited, since its inception some seven years back, has been engaged in the extensive research, testing and development of various Ayurvedic and herbal health care, beauty care and personal care products, both for consumption of the domestic and international markets.
