If you go

Getting there

Liverpool is 2 1/2 hours from London by train, a bit far for a day trip, and there's so much to experience that it deserves at least a two-day stay. In general, a round-trip first-class ticket from London to Liverpool's Lime Street station is about $86, and the best train-travel packages are generally found online at www.britrail.

Eating

Possibly the best dining in England's North Country is at a cozy, romantic Liverpool bistro called Puschka, where an appetizer of baked apple slices layered with black pudding is topped with Spanish chorizo and drizzled with honey, and the rump of Cheshire lamb rests on a pillow of hazelnut-parsnip puree; 16 Rodney St., www.puschka.co.
