

Myriad of tasks to be done before the puck drops at a Wildcatters game

BEAUMONT - Malcolm Cameron wore a red pullover shirt under a navy v-neck sweater, blue jeans and brown boots. His slicked black hair pointed up, away from a full-grown goatee around a toothy grin.

He sipped coffee from a silver travel mug while hunched over a laptop computer, onto which he copied video that highlighted strengths and weaknesses of his team's opponent.

Cameron, 38, does not claim to be a coaching genius, but picture Dallas Cowboys coach Wade Phillips with a clicker in hand and both eyes focused on a video monitor. All Cameron asks of players is to give a consistent effort and adhere to a game plan, and they'll finish most contests as winners.

This day is no different.

Cameron, set to coach in the ECHL All-Star Game for a second straight season Jan. 23, prepares his South Division-leading Texas Wildcatters hockey team for the Charlotte Checkers the same way he does for any other squad.

"What I say is you can't have a huge difference between the top and bottom of your team," Cameron said about eight hours before his team's game Friday at Ford Arena. "Because the bottom always drags the top down. If you have 70 percent of your players giving all their effort and 30 percent not working hard, that turns out to be far less than 70 percent."

Cameron's game preparation lasts about 12 hours. He arrives to work at 7:45 a.m., edits video for about 90 minutes and puts his team through a 60-minute practice. A post-practice video-watching session lasts about 20 minutes, after which players leave the arena.

Most players go to apartments rented by the team. They eat, take naps and return to Ford Arena by 5 p.m. This game, a 4-2 victory for the Wildcatters, began at 7:30 p.m., but Cameron's preparations started with the arrival of a small package from a former roommate Thursday afternoon.

He received a DVD of Charlotte's Dec. 29 game against the South Carolina Stingrays. The team's coach, Jared Bednar, roomed with Cameron during his first professional playing season, in 1993-1994 with the Huntington (W. Va.) Blizzard, so Cameron used the connection to get an edge.

This is the third game this season and the first in 42 days between the Wildcatters and Checkers. The Wildcatters won the first two games but will soon face a squad unlike what they saw earlier this season. Charlotte used 17 players no longer on the team's roster in the first two games against Texas.

"Two weeks ago is a long time in this league," Cameron said. "Two weeks ago, this team was very different, and two weeks from now it will be significantly different than it is today."

Change occurs daily for ECHL teams. At this time, however, Cameron had little way of knowing an injury to his best skater hours later would cause him to make significant mid-game adjustments while his team nursed a one-goal lead.

Surveillance

Cameron changed into an all-black, nylon workout suit with a Wildcatters logo on the left breast for a morning practice. He began the session with power play units on the ice and later chided his entire team for a poor performance in passing drills.

By 11:05 a.m., Cameron's players assembled in front of him and a 32-inch television, to which he linked his laptop to show video clips.

Cameron stressed Charlotte likes to pass the puck by rimming it around the ends of the rink, from one side of the goalie net to the other. He tells his forwards to seal a passing lane to the front of the net when Charlotte is on a power play. Failure hours later to do this allowed Charlotte to score a goal in a second period that frustrated Cameron.

Tim Cook, a rookie defenseman from the University of Michigan, sat in a bank of wood paneled locker stalls and watched Cameron speak. He is a 6-foot-4 New Jersey native with close-cropped blond hair. He said the video session helps players understand their opponents' tendencies.

"When a person is watching a game it looks like guys are just doing whatever they're doing, but each guy has a specific job," said Cook, oftentimes responsible for clearing the puck from the Wildcatters' goal and preventing crossing passes to the other side of the net during opponents' power plays.

"It's a lot more intricate than you think it is initially," Cook said.

Cameron's next attempt to gain an edge for the night's contest came when he sat about halfway up the arena bleachers to watch the Checkers complete their midday practice. Wildcatters forward Marc Fulton stood in the doorway to his team's bench and watched with a different purpose.

"He'll pick up subtleties in what they do," the 6-1, grizzled native of Vancouver, B.C., said of Cameron. "If they work the power play, he'll kind of see where they set up and stuff like that. I'm not (watching) with the same kind of purpose as Coach. I'm watching to see some guys I know."

The middle of Cameron's game day typically consists of a workout, a trip home for lunch and a mid-afternoon return to the arena. By 4:45 p.m., Cameron sat at a desk in an office around the bend of an L-shaped hallway under the bleachers.

Cameron's attire: a gray button-down shirt, a yellow and gray patterned tie, black pinstripe pants and black shoes with a silver buckle across the top. A black pinstriped suit coat rests on a hanger. On his right hand is a gold ring with a blue face and gold 'A' on top.

"That's my college national championship ring," said Cameron, a 1993 graduate of Acadia University in Nova Scotia.

Cameron said he wears the ring only on game days.

"It puts me in a winning mindset," said Cameron, who reinforced his messages from the morning during a brief meeting at 5:45 p.m.

Much like a baseball player who tailors a bat by sanding the handle and applying pine tar, hockey players sand and tape the tops and bottoms of sticks in the hours before a game. They check for stick flexibility by bending it toward the floor.

After that, some players loosen up by kicking a soccer ball to each other. A few listen to music. Many talk about hockey.

Game time

By game time, players will have already skated an additional 20 minutes, retreated to the locker room and returned to the ice for starting lineup announcements.

Assistant coach Leon Hayward arrived from a sales job in Houston at 6 p.m. A Wildcatters player last season, Hayward lives in Houston and coaches only in home games.

"As a player, it's amazing how much you actually miss," said Hayward, in charge of defensemen during games. "But it's been a definite adjustment being a coach and seeing how the game is played. You see how the game develops more as a coach."

Hayward called attention to Kevin Baker when he suffered a groin injury in the opening minute. Limited by the injury to power plays because those require less skating, Baker played through the pain and scored a second-period goal to extend his point streak to eight games.

With Baker limited, Cook shifted from defense to forward. Cook shifted back to defense when David Schulz suffered a shoulder injury that put him out of the game in the third period. Put another player out of the game with a broken skate and another in the penalty box, and Cameron had limited options.

"I took one of (Hayward's) guys," Cameron said of Cook. "Then somebody blows a skate, somebody gets hurt, one gets a penalty and now all of a sudden you have one (defenseman) left on your bench. And you're shifting guys around, going back and forth and changing your line combinations.

"It gets tough when that happens, it always seems to happen at once. When that happens, as I said to the guys in the lockerroom, you still have to do what you do best. Just because you're playing more minutes doesn't mean you have to do something different."

Cameron stepped off his team's bench for the final time Friday with his 184th regular season ECHL victory. Although he gets credit for the victory, he may have been stuck at 183 without additional input.

In addition to Hayward, athletic trainer Haley Orwick informs Cameron of his players' health, as she did when she told him Baker should be limited to power plays during the first intermission.

Wildcatters players Riley Emmerson and Dan Welch, inactive for the game, sat in the bleachers to chart turnovers and hits and reported to Cameron during intermissions. Team captain John McNabb instructed teammates when on the ice and shouted encouragement when on the bench.

"Leon, when he's here, does a great job; I don't even pay attention to the D," Cameron said. "Then it's the players. Haley does a great job keeping them healthy. Phil (Shipp) does a great job getting their equipment and making sure they're ready for games. And then the players themselves, they're buying the message.

"It's really good that we have veteran players who are selling the message on the bench and in the lockerroom so that I don't have to. That's really helped, players holding each other accountable."

At the end of the night, Cameron leaned away from his desk with his tie removed and the top button of his shirt undone. He took a sip from a beer bottle.

"I'm glad we faced a little adversity so we can see what guys are made of," Cameron said with more than half a season ahead of him.

Chris, I have to say, I'm proud of you, man!! This is by far, the best article you've written on the Texas Wildcatters. You showed everyone just how much work goes into putting a great product out on the ice. Most folks don't have a clue! This article gives props where they are due, and doesn't have any negative connotations to it! Wonderful! I'd love to see more articles about the Wildcatters written in the same style. Keep up the good work. Andi Smith, a.k.a.

MACROSS (Virtual Fortress) There are three views: a holistic approach, as it is a material development Jiangxu triggered by the end of the tragedy of the people wake up and sing the praises of the beautiful hidden hearts of the wishes of the great momentum of war history books; another One is the focus on partial to see Haruhiko Mikimoto how brutal war to mold characters, which is unusual to see a juvenile-from the growth of the glorious history of heroism - the typical hero biography and finally love is a matter of course , around one-fai, as early as Lufthansa and Ming Seto of the United States between the complex and simple, both general and the legendary Sangulian situation.

Works to a general evaluation of the standards, the above three aspects, so long as there is a good handle on the side of the must-see, there are two aspects of it is also certain to see, and the three areas are very good that is able to see again - and M ACROSS is such a memory can be left in such a good impression of classical works. But here I do not intend to make it all the classic detailed Jiangxu, because today s theme is love .

In MACROSS inside, and love of the opera does not appear to be significant proportion of circumstances, has been able to impressed, mainly thanks Haruhiko Mikimoto figure set in the extraordinary skill. He is the ability to have, whether it is a lovable and lively Lynn Minmei or gentle morning Seto not Xianjing Lufthansa can be nimble with the delicate demonstrated by the way, let us with the feelings of both sides together in one-Dangling.

(Note 1: MACROSS are mentioned here only for the first run, and PLUS or MACRSS7 no relationship Note 2: Because of the TV version of MACROSS FILM version with greater distinction, the following will separate Jiangxu.)

TV version of the beginning, the story is structured around a Ming-fai, and between the United States and a good flying like singing and juvenile girls in a very fortuitous opportunity to get involved with the war, do not know or are unlucky lucky Two people were in an extremely difficult environment with a separate under the opportunity to work together with each other in the process of making a living had a feeling.n

Lufthansa Seto not impressed at the big fish time - in the past Saturn love memories, and then-is a hero to save the United States, Then there were days when Dingxing were captured by the use of the infamous K ISS attack, Haruhiko Mikimoto tendency to write about feelings has become increasingly evident.

Nevertheless, Lin Ming-United States began with a superior performance in the one-occupied the minds of the status of the still very solid, if that is her Cousin there, perhaps the situation would be completely different along another development of the situation. With experience, who love opera, Few so-called cousin role as a more evil exists. Careful analysis will understand that, in the TV version of the Ming give us the impression that the United States as early Seto not Lufthansa, most of the reasons for that is because her Cousin engaged with the drive.

This situation is more or less the situation in the next step towards the early Seto not conducive to the development of Lufthansa, until she left MACROSS ship back to Earth that moment, she found only one-in their own minds has been the weight Lin Ming-far more than the United States, so he can calmly in the final attack before the face of previous lovers Lynn Minmay.n

The end of the war meant the beginning of a new life, beginning as early as Lufthansa Seto not show her gentle side, as a personal-care life. Lin Ming-and at the moment the United States has returned to the one-side. At that moment, the United States not only as Lin Ming-Hsiu graceful past, but also now a little more mature Cute, throwing all her determination to recapture the past only for lovers. 1-deluded, in the past and he is now hovering between, I do not know how to choose the future.n

TV version of it is so thin with a hint of sadness and hope ended, a very-although the choice of watching some melancholy inevitably it is the popular will, I have always believed that in the TV version of the US-Ming Seto early performance of Lufthansa, and Lin Ming-circulated to the United States and she truly dazzling brilliance in the arena of the public was considered classic in the classic in the film version.

Love, remember?n

In fact, as I have such easy emotional person is not suitable for this subject matter, because the memories were too easily excited by the infection, which caused thousands of thoughts, is the direct result of the minds has 1,000 words and works is not the word -- go to a lot of wasted time, the body can begin:

Perhaps that is found in the TV version of the reason for too eccentric, or they had to identify their maximum potential value of the idea, Haruhiko Mikimoto to Juchangban Lynn Minmei in shaping the glamorous, almost perfect.n

Even so, the final victory is still not as Seto Lufthansa. The reason for it, the answer to a simple word can be said clearly that distance - When Ming was rushed to the United States when the alien bases, as early as Lufthansa Seto not stay on the a-side, when Lin The difficulty that the United States back from afar, it can only be found in the choice of a side-she has no space (This is perhaps very beautiful, but it is very realistic.n

Yes, I could sing, this is my own choice road, so I have to continue on the path!

Lin Ming-hui hands of the United States took over from a time so the lyrics said, she grow up, not tears, then hanging in his face, she no longer even have to tell her what is one-and why people sing. Lynn Minmay mature, but perhaps only she can understand what is the price of maturity.n

A-driven aircraft headed straight to the heart of the enemy, the United States singing in the Ming, in the early Lufthansa Seto not under the watchful eyes of the deductible under the trigger - Mission Accomplished when he calm an end to the war came the voice of , you will understand why he was so worthy of the two outstanding girls shed tears for him (10 years later, as W version of the TV at the end of chapter, Xi Luo very similar to the scene in the state under the same the lines, but only gives a tiger painting not like a dog feeling).
