

The Acne is an infection of the skin

PR.com) - Acne Treatment Answers, 11 April 2008 ( Live-pr ) - - Acne, an inflammatory disease caused by the changes in the sebaceous glands of the skin. It is often related to what we eat. The symptom of the disease is that it develops a redness, which comes from the inflammation of the skin in response to the infection. When the oil from the sebaceous gland merges with the dead skin cells, it blocks the hair follicles. This makes the skin bacteria to grow very fast. This infection develop swollen and redness in the skin, which becomes noticeable. Acne mostly occurs in forehead, face, back, chest and arms. There are many researches going on in many medical organizations and research laboratories to find out a perfect acne medicine. There are many websites which would give you information

Acne treatment and medication products. Acne can develop scars; it makes skin for painful and very sensitive. It can create reduced self-esteem. Acne affects typically affects in teenagers. The causes of Acne may be hormonal fluctuation, hyperactive sebaceous glands, mind stress, dead skins cells staying on the skin, bacteria may form in the pores; it may even cause skin irritation and scratching of any sort. Some people think that Acne may occur because of improper diet. Some think that the act of masturbation and of not having sex can also cause Acne, but it is not true. It is completely normal and does not have any impact on Acne disease.

There are many Acne medicine are available for its treatment. But finding the perfect medicine is the real challenge. A couple of home made treatments can also cure acne like killing of the bacteria that grow in the blocked follicle. This can be done by administering antibiotics. The antibiotics take immediate effect in the acne and develop resistance towards bacterial infection. Intake of Vitamin A would definitely remove the oil on the skin. Another major treatment is removing of the dead skin cells using some acids, the most popularly used acid is salicylic acid. Acne solution is wide in the market. Acne can create bad scars; it develops in the shape of the volcano. It is very not easy and costly to treat acne scars. A few of the treatments to acne scars are Dermabrasion, in which the upper layer is taken way making the scar less deep. But it does not remove the scar completely, it would require many treatments. Laser resurfacing, in which a laser beam treatment is used remove the top layer of the acne. Punch excision is a method through which the scar is raised with a tool and the edges are smoothed. The chemicals are used to peel out the acne layer. There are many natural remedy treatments which will consist of best herbals. They can be cured with the help of medication through a proper learnt method. You can also get rid of acne using home made acne treatment which is more effective than laser or medical treatment. Body acne can also be hormonal. Therefore hormonal treatments are recommended for such acnes. It is also recommended not to scrub your body acnes as this has mostly resulted in worse conditions. Combination of Irritated skin and oily skin results in acne.
